DINING

Our dishes include berries that grow in barrens; edible plants plucked from our shorelines; cattle from our ranches; wine from our vineyards; and vegetables and rhubarb fresh from our gardens. Of course, you'll also dine on Pacific caught seafood fished from local waters.

We aim for 80 percent of our ingredients to come from Orcas Island and the surrounding region, and we operate with regenerative practices and a zero-waste mission. As an eco-conscious business, we support local entrepreneurship and suppliers. We take pride in our culture and nature and invest operating surpluses from our businesses in community development. We have partnered with local restaurants and all meals at any restaurant on the island are included as a part of your stay. By dining at the Inn and other local restaurants, you are contributing to the economic, social, and cultural health of our community.

SUSTAINABILITY

The Orcas Island Inn is designed to elevate both people and place. Rooted in a deep respect for the land, the resort integrates low-impact, off-grid strategies that minimize environmental disturbance while maximizing guest connection to nature. From renewable energy and closed-loop water systems to the use of local, non-toxic materials, every design decision contributes to long-term ecological and community health. Prefabricated construction methods reduce site disruption and embodied carbon, while educational and cultural programming ensures that guests leave with a greater appreciation for the island's natural and cultural heritage. Beyond "doing less harm," the Inn is designed to restore ecosystems, empower local economies, and offer a new vision of luxury rooted in sustainability.

FACTS

- 18.4 kBtu/sf/year of clean energy generated by on-site solar array
- 1,551 kWh of battery storage, providing 7+ days of off-grid energy resilience
- 74% of water needs met through rainwater harvesting (683,280 gallons/year)
- 60% water reduction through greywater recycling and composting toilets
- 66% less embodied carbon through mass timber and straw bale construction
- Ocean-sourced heat pumps and HRVs reduce energy demand by 52%

FEATURES

- Pollinator-friendly green roofs on lodge and treehouses
- All buildings elevated to preserve ecosystems and wildlife corridors while providing storm resilience
- Natural, non-toxic, and locally sourced materials (Basalt, Cedar, Douglas Fir)
- Prefabricated wall panels minimize site construction impacts and waste
- Fire-resistant exterior cladding made from Shou Sugi Ban cedar and basalt
- Biophilic and passive design strategies connect guests to place and reduce energy use

OTHER FEATURES

Visits to the Orcas Island Inn is meant to be an escape, but it is also an opportunity to learn, grow, and be inspired. The Inn features a range of additional amenities including a gallery hosting local and indigenous art that serves as a cultural hall for engaging experiences that offer insight into the history of our region and how we are working to preserve this paradise. Additionally, we offer a variety of communal spaces such as a lounge, a bar, and a variety of outdoor fire pits and gathering spaces.

Wasgo Sea Wolf art print by Beltschazar

The wasgo, or sea wolf, is a mythological creature of the indigenous people of the Pacific Northwest coast of Canada. It is part whale and part wolf.

ACTIVITIES & EXCURSIONS

The rugged island landscape around Orcas Island Inn offers a host of outdoor activities, local attractions, and available tours. The opportunities mentioned below are just a few of the many attractions. Complimentary itinerary planning is available through the Orcas Island Inn.

HIKING & MOUNTAIN BIKING

Orcas Island and surrounding islands are home to world class hiking and mountain biking. Orcas Island has a variety of trails located at state parks such as Obstruction Pass State Park, Moran State Park, and Turtle Back Mountain Preserve.

ISLAND SHOPPING AND CULTURAL VISITS

Our electric vehicle fleet and road bike rentals give guests access to Orcas islands with retail shops, restaurants, and art/pottery classes in towns such as Eastsound, Doe Bay, and Deer Harbor.

KAYAKING AND PADDLE BOARDING

The kayaking and paddle boarding of the San Juan Islands is unmatched. Join the wildlife into the sea and enjoy crystal blue waters in our very own bay and beyond in places such as Cascade Lake in Moran State Park.

OTHER ISLAND VISITS

Through Washington State Ferries and our own private electric boat charters, guests have easy access to other nearby San Juan Islands and their various attractions.

WINERIES

Orcas Island is home to the one and only Orcas Island Winery. Tastings and tours are open to our guests. San Juan Island and Lopez Island are also close by and have their own wineries.

WHALE WATCHING AND FISHING TOURS

Whale Watching and Fishing tours can also be scheduled and give guests the opportunity to interact with local sea life. The San Juan Islands are home to two types of Orcas, Humpback whales, Minke whales, Grey whales, Pacific white-sided dolphins, Harbor porpoise, Dall's porpoise, Harbor seals, Elephant seals, Sea lions, River otters, and over 200 bird species, including bald eagles
