Frank Spane and Paul Thorne are submitting abstracts for the National Waste conference which is being held in Tucson Arizona. I reviewed the abstracts and started the process moving so that they would be cleared in an adequate time frame. Both abstracts are on the development of the terminal storage facility proposed in the basalt at Hanford and the hydraulic properties of the rock media.

On February 24, John Mucha, Norm Frank and I attended a review of a program which VITRO is planning to give to the school districts in the Tri-Cities. The meeting was held at 6:00 p.m. at the VITRO offices. The three of us reviewed their talks and discussions and made recommendations as to how to improve on them and still keep the audiences attention. They had an interesting subject and they thought that the recommendations that we made benefited their efforts to be better presenters.

Jeff Schmaltz visited the office on February 28, to review the efforts that he will be making to complete the movie he has developed for us. He will be making an effort to complete the tape in a timely manner so that it can be shown, if necessary, at the hearings that Phil and I are to give presentations. We have not, as of this time received notification of the hearing, but we are standing by if are presents is required.
