Dear Khun Supachai:

I spoke to Roger Mitchell today with regard to my interest in writing a short business story about the opening of the Royal Phnom Penh Hotel for my newspaper, the Phnom Penh Post.

Roger requested that I consult with you on several questions concerning your enterprise. The questions are as follows:

1. What is the name of the parent firm that is making the investment to develop this hotel property, and can you give me any descriptive information on the parent company or investors?
2. Can you give me a rough idea of the size of the investment involved, i.e. how many $?

I should say that the Phnom Penh Post provides regular coverage of business news in Cambodia. We generally try to write about new enterprises as a means of giving our readers an insight into the overall performance of the Cambodian economy as it relates to both domestic and foreign investment. We have numerous subscribers outside of Cambodia who are interested in this subject as they are watching investment trends.

If you have no objection to providing me with the above information, please fax it to me by Saturday morning as I am writing the article for the next edition of the Post which comes out next week.

Thank you for your assistance.

Sincerely,

Michael G. Hayes
