P. 14.

See Preface - Mr. A. A. Staunton of the Expedition, & now of the Royal Artillery, politely furnished the drawing of the plain of Babylon: - - - -

Her Majesty's steamer, named after the river which she first (after the melancholy loss of her consort) navigated, is there - suggesting strange notions of the triumph of Brit. art & of Brit. perseverance, & in thus approaching, in a manner that ought to have deserved more for a nation's pride, the misery of mankind, & the woe of human knowledge,
