Pacific Northwest Music Festival
January 24th, 1995

University of Washington Wind Ensemble
Timothy Salzman, Conductor

"First Suite in E-Flat for Military Band"........ By Gustav Holst
1. Chaconne

Larry Gookin, Guest conductor
Director of Bands, Central Washington University

"World Premiere" of
"Wildfire"........ By Lawrence Wolfe
Douglas Yeo, Bass Trombone

Composers Notes.... "Some of my best music has been composed for my friends and colleagues in the Boston Symphony Orchestra the music strikes far more often when I have the person as well as the instrumentalist in mind. When Doug Yeo asked me to write a piece for him, I immediately began to hear the music that I would want to hear him play, as well as the music I imagined he would want to play, and soon after Doug's request, extra music began to appear on his Symphony Hall stand besides Berlioz and Beethoven. Someone named Wolfe would leave the latest version of an as-yet-unnamed composition for his approval. (Special thanks to Doug's daughter Robin for the terrific title!) What a joy to call this great musician colleague and friend, and have access to him daily as I compose a piece of music for him."

"Folk Songs for Band" (Suite No. 3)......... By David Stanhope

John H. Kloecker, Guest conductor
Director of Bands, University of Nebraska-Lincoln

"Concerto for Bass Trombone with Wind Ensemble"........... By Vaclav Nelhybel

Douglas Yeo, Bass Trombone

Composers Notes.... "Concerto for Bass Trombone was composed for and dedicated to Douglas Yeo. The original version is for symphony orchestra. The version with a large Wind Ensemble was made for this performance by the wind ensemble of the Conservatory of New England. I. Molto adagio: In a short slow introduction the Woodwinds, Brass and Percussion compliment each other in the mood of expectation of the action to come. Allegro: The solo Trombone leads the constant interaction between the Woodwinds, Brass and Percussion. II. Adagio molto: A XII century Bohemian Chorale (Saint Wenceslaus), is the theme in a constantly changing setting. As a contrast the solo Trombone maintains the rhythmic patterns from the first movement. The movement ends with tutti Woodwinds a Brass restating in wide chords the rhythmic opening of the movement. III Vivo: The interaction of Woodwinds and Brass is intensified by frequent chordal settings. The solo Trombone maintains its leading function. The widening of some important intervals contributes to its leading role."
University of Washington Wind Ensemble Personnel

Piccolo: Pablo Sepulveda
Flute: Brian Fairbanks, Kyoko Dati, Meighan Pritchard
Oboe: Jared Hauser, Jennifer Baullinger
English Horn: Kristine Kiner
Bassoon: Emily Robertson, Jennifer Smith
Clarinet: Debbie Smith
Thuc Nguyen, Kevin Hinshaw, Teresa Wilson, Adam Smith, Conny Chen, Pamela Farmer
Bass Clarinet: Kathryn Suther, Jennifer Baullinger
Alto Saxophone: Suzie Cavassa, Andrea Rahn
Tenor Saxophone: Greg Sharp
Baritone Saxophone: Eric Morgenstern
Horn: John Bolcer, Todd Brooks, Carey LaMothe, Donald Ankney, Shauna Johnson
Trombone: Kevin Karnes, Jeff Walker, Kelly Van Amburg, Nathan Brown
Euphonium: Zack Hill, Dan Kretz
Tuba: Nathaniel Irby-Oxford, Scott Johnson
Percussion: Patrick Roulet, Steve Korn, Phil Bowden, Mark Wilbert, Jana Skillingstead
String Bass: Brad Hartman

Imperials Music and Youth Organization and the

University of Washington School of Music

would like to extend a special thanks to all of the volunteers for their hard work, and to the following clinicians for their dedication to the

Pacific Northwest Music Festival:

Raydell Bradley - Pacific Lutheran University

Larry Gookin - Central Washington University

Jay Kloecker - University of Nebraska