THE STORY

The scene is laid in 18th Century Venice

Act I

SCENE I. NIGHT. A GARDEN IN THE PALACE OF THE COMMENDATORE.

The notorious and licentious Don Giovanni enters the apart­ments of Donna Anna at night. Her screams for help bring her father, the Commeodatore, to the rescue, and in a brief sword fight the Commeodatore is killed. Donna Anna has gone for help and returns with her fiancé, Ottavio, to find her unknown assailant and his servant, Leporello, gone and her father dead. They swear vengeance upon the murderer.

SCENE II. THE NEXT MORNING. A STREET.

Don Giovanni's desire for feminine companionship leads him to approach another lady, whom he discovers to be Donna Elvira, a former conquest, who is angry with him for leaving her. The Don manages to escape, leaving Leporello to tell the distraught woman of his master's hundreds of affairs. Later that same day, peasants on the estate of Don Giovanni are celebrating the coming wedding of Masetto and Zerlina. Don Giovanni is fascinated by the girl and invites everyone to a ball at his palace where he hopes to make love to Zerlina. Unknowingly, the Don also invites Donna Anna, Donna Elvira, and Don Ottavio, who intend to keep watch and then confront Don Giovanni with his sins.

SCENE III. EVENING. THE BALLROOM OF DON GIOVANNI'S PALACE.

Despite complications, Don Giovanni continues his flirtation with Zerlina at the ball that evening. She cries for help, and Don Ottavio, Donna Elvira, and Donna Anna rush to her rescue. When an attempt to throw the blame upon Leporello fails, the Don draws his sword and escapes from the palace.

INTERMISSION

Act II

SCENE I. EARLY EVENING. A STREET.

In front of the inn where Donna Elvira is staying, the Don pretends to repent and sings a song at her window. When Elvira comes out, Leporello impersonates the Don and goes off with her, leaving the Don free to turn his attention to Elvira's serving maid, who has captured his attention. This adventure is cut short by the arrival of Masetto searching for the villainous Don Giovanni. Quickly, the Don pretends to be Leporello and offers to help catch the nobleman.

SCENE II. A SHORT TIME LATER. A CHURCHYARD.

That evening near a statue of the dead Commendatore, Don Giovanni and Leporello are frightened when they hear the statue speak to them. Despite the pleadings of Leporello, the defiant Don invites the statue to supper.
