SYNOPSIS

Place and Time: The province of Harima, Japan...anytime.

THE STORY: Tametomo, a Samurai warrior, on his way to the capitol unwittingly trespasses on Demon Territory. Threatening to eat him, the Demon remembers that his daughter has yet to celebrate her first "feast of flesh." Tametomo, realizing that the Demon's daughter is attracted to him and the Demon is unaware of this, decides to trick the Demon and his daughter in a series of contests. The first contest is arm wrestling, the second is shin wrestling, and the third is the tug of war. The Demon, seeing that his daughter is losing the contest, calls forth the Demon helpers who bring much confusion, but little help. Tametomo by a clever ploy loses the tug of war, thereby gaining his freedom.

ABOUT THE STARS

Constance Koschmann...Debuted at the age of three singing 'Little Jesus in the Manger I Love You' in the Christmas pageant in church in Othello. Later she was the spelling champ in the fourth, fifth and sixth grades; she went on to become the Valentine Queen in the eighth grade. President of her freshman class, she also was a cheerleader. On tour with a ladies' trio she performed in such places as Hatton, Washington and Scobey, Montana.

Susan Thomle.............. Debuted at age two in Betty Spooner's Dance School as the Shadow in 'Me and My Shadow.' (Her sister starred as Me.) Miss Thomle was a Spartan Cheerleader and a Trumpeter in Norm and Dusty's Drum and Bugle Corps. Her dancing career was cut short by an unfortunate accident during another production at Spooner's School of Dance. She bravely resumes her dancing this evening. A former editor of Panther Press, she summered at Bar 41 Ranch, and toured from there through Idaho and the Midwest.

Robert Julien............. Largest child of a large family, he debuted at the age of eight singing 'I Wonder as I Wander' in Idaho Falls, Idaho. He received an 'A' in remedial reading in Junior High, where he was also manager for the baseball team. In 1965 he won second place in Channel 13's Stairway to Stardom Contest. His studies have since taken him far and wide. Among his myriad roles is that of the standout Innkeeper at a nearby Pub.

Peter Ashbaugh.......... At the age of ten, Mr. Ashbaugh began his performing career by starring in a commercial for a chicken company. He was troop bugler for his boy scout troop and distinguished himself further by delivering the invocation at his own graduation. His dance background includes slithering as a poisonous snake in a pre-school ballet program in Raleigh Hills, Oregon.
