CENTURY TOWER OVERTURE is an original work that features a wide variety of moods. The brilliant opening fanfare leads to the allegro theme stated initially by the clarinets. The middle adagio section begins with a lyric trumpet solo and leads back to the allegro theme. The work ends with a return of allegro and fanfare material.

JAMES BARNES was born on September 9, 1949, in Hobart, Oklahoma. He received bachelor’s and master’s degrees in theory and composition from the University of Kansas in 1974 and 1975 and studied conducting privately with Zuoohuang Chen. Since 1977, he has been affiliated with the University of Kansas and is presently an Associate-Professor of Theory and Composition and Assistant Conductor of Bands. He is also a tubist and has performed with numerous professional organizations. He has received many awards, grants and commissions and was twice recipient of the Ostwald Composition Award. He has written over 45 works for band.

SYMPHONIC DANCE #3 "Fiesta" depicts the pageantry of Latin America celebrations — street bands, bull fights, bright costumes. It is one of a group of five originally commissioned works for the twenty-fifth anniversary of the San Antonio Symphony Orchestra. It was first performed by that orchestra in January, 1965. The composer then scored the work for band, and it was first performed in March, 1967, by the University of Miami Band, under the composer’s direction.

CLIFTON WILLIAMS, born in Traskwood, Arkansas in 1923, completed studies at Louisiana State University and the Eastman School of Music. After teaching at the University of Texas in Austin for seventeen years, he became chairman of the theory-composition department at the University of Miami School of Music in 1966. Widely acclaimed as a composer of serious music for the concert band, he has received numerous prizes, awards and honors. Many of his compositions have become standard repertory for concert bands around the world.

THE FLORENTINER MARCH, subtitled Grande Marcia Italiana, opens with a short bugle fanfare; then proceeds directly into a strain of repeated notes which sound like a flighty Florentine signorina chattering to her gentleman friend from Berlin, who only has time to answer a (two-note) "ja-wohl" occasionally. The march continues with another fanfare; a light, floating trio melody; an interlude; and a triumphant repeat with a challenging piccolo part. The length and content of this march lead one to believe that, like Sousa with his Free Lance March, Fucik must have tried to condense an operetta into a march.

JULIUS FUCIK was born in Prague where he studied at the conservatory from 1885 to 1891 with, among others, the noted Anton Dvorak. He later served in the 49th Austro-Hungarian Regimental Band at Krems, then returned to Prague to play bassoon in local orchestras. In 1897 he began his career as a bandmaster with the 86th Regiment Band in Sarajevo, Yugoslavia, and later returned to his country to lead the 92nd Regiment Band at Theresienstadt. He was a prolific composer of over 400 works, including operettas, chamber music, masses, songs, and a symphonic suite. Of his more than 100 marches, Florentine is among the most popular.

GHOST DANCE was commissioned by and dedicated to the Augustana College Concert Band, Sioux Falls, South Dakota, Bruce Ammann, Director. By the final decade of the nineteenth century, the Lakota (Sioux) Nation had been militarily defeated, the religion outlawed, and their lifestyle dramatically changed. Gone were the large herds of buffalo which provided food, clothing, and shelter to these mystic warriors of the plains. The Lakota were confined to a few small reservations and reduced to depending upon meager (and often unreliable) government rations and the generosity of sympathetic whites. At this time of deepest despair, the Paiute Prophet, Wovoka (living in Nevada), began to teach a new religion of hope; if all danced the “dance of departed spirits,” if all sang his sacred songs, if all would return to traditional lifestyles, the buffalo would return, all Native Americans who had passed over would come back to life, and the white man would vanish from the earth. Native people from throughout the continent sent delegations to Wovoka to learn the new songs and dances and receive sacred paints and prayers. After Lakota representatives returned from Nevada, “Ghost Dancing” spread rapidly among the Sioux. Alarmed by these developments, white settlers and government agents created fear of a new Indian War. An outcry for protection against the Ghost Dancers led to increased military presence in the Dakotas setting the stage for a series of tragic events which culminated in the murder of Sitting Bull at his home on December 15, 1890, and the slaughter of nearly four hundred men, women, and children from Big Foot’s band of Minneconjou Sioux on December 29, 1890 at the place called Wounded Knee.

The first movement sets the mood of the Hambliceya (Vision Quest). The vision quest is a ritual in which a male Indian is taken to a very secluded place for prayers and worship. While there, the Indian can receive spiritual guidance and/or visions to direct his life. Hints of the Ghost Dance songs Wanagi Wacipi Olowan by Short Bull can be heard throughout this movement. The second movement evokes the hope and comforting atmosphere of the Ghost Dance. The middle section of this movement is based on the opening song of the Ghost Dance. The last movement depicts the battle on the morning of December 29: 1890. The baby cries are from one of the surviving children named Lost Bird who was found under her mother. Following the cadenza, the mood depicts the scene after the battle. The opening muted trumpet solo is a tribute to the Native Americans who were killed. Afterward, the percussion portrays the burial of the frozen bodies as they are thrown into a mass grave. The chimes represent eternal life given to each Native American that is thrown into the mass grave.

QUINCY HILLIARD is an eight-time recipient of the distinguished American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers (ASCAP) award recognizing the numerous performances of his works. He has conducted and adjudicated in all parts of the world. He has extensive publications in journal articles and is a recognized scholar of Copland’s music. He currently holds the Heymann Endowed Professorship and is associate professor of music theory and composition at the University of Northwestern Louisiana in Lafayette.

CHORALE AND SHAKER DANCE refers to the principal sections of the composition, the opening chorus, and the shaker hymn, “Tis a Gift to be Simple.” These melodies are used in alternation, combination, and with extreme rhythmic variation throughout the composition, Written in 1972, it was commissioned by the Jefferson High School Band of Bloomington, Minnesota, Earl Benson, director. The work has become a standard in the band repertoire since its premiere at the National MENC convention in 1972.

JOHN ZDECHLIK received the Bachelor of Music Education degree from the University of Minnesota in 1957. After a few years as a music teacher, Zdechlik returned to the University of Minnesota, where he received the master degree in theory and composition. He was a faculty member both during and after his graduate studies, but decided to pursue a Ph.D. in composition and theory, which he completed in 1970.

SUITE FRANÇAISE was the result of a commission by Leeds Music in 1945, and was premiered by the Goldman band that same year. It was so successful, that Milhaud was requested to revise it for orchestra, where it was first performed by the New York Philharmonic. Percy Grainger wrote this of the Goldman band performance: "...and what I got...was pure joy in hearing Milhaud's Suite Francaise. What a bewitching work! What enchanting she-like little tunes darting about, what a mastery of form and tone colour, what manly power in the use of 7-tone scales...

Milhaud provides the following notes: The five parts of this suite are named after French provinces, the very one in which the American and Allied armies fought together with the French underground for the liberation of my country-Normandy, Brittany, Ile-de-France (of which Paris is the center), Alsace-Lorraine, and Provence. I used some folk tunes of the provinces. I wanted the young Americans to hear the popular melodies of those parts of France where their fathers and brothers fought.

DARIUS MILHAUD was born in Aix-en-Provence, France in 1892. He was a student at the Paris Conservatory, where he won awards in violin, counterpoint, and fugue. His studies were interrupted by World War I and he did not return to Paris until 1919 when he became associated with the group of young French composers known as Les Six. This group felt that French music had become a slave to impressionism and could be freed only through simplicity. They exerted a profound influence on modern French music, and Milhaud's artistic stature continued to grow until he became recognized as the major composer of France. Through his many travels Milhaud internalized many of the stylistic influences of the countries he visited. Most notably, his works show the influence of American jazz and the rhythms of South America. He used polytonal and polyharmonic devices extensively. In 1940 he came to the United States to escape the Nazi occupation of France, becoming a composer-in-residence at Mills College in Oakland. After WW II, he alternated between Mills College and the Paris Conservatory. Milhaud died in Geneva, Switzerland on June 22, 1974.

MALLETS is a new vibraphone concerto written for University of Washington percussion professor Tom Collier. The five movements feature a variety of moods and styles within a jazz context. Tonight's performance is the world premiere.

WILLIAM O. SMITH was born in Sacramento, California in 1926. He studied clarinet and took courses in composition with Darius Milhaud at Mills College, Oakland, California and later with Roger Sessions at the University of California. He taught clarinet in various institutions in California and in 1960 received a Guggenheim Fellowship. He is recently retired from the University of Washington School of Music.

Northwestern University commissioned LES COULEURS FAUVES ("The Vivid Colors") as a tribute to the retiring director of bands, John P. Flynter, in honor of the 40th anniversary of his appointment to the faculty. Unfortunately this wonderful musician and champion of new music died before the premiere which took place in Evanston, Illinois on November 16, 1966, by the University Symphonic Wind Ensemble (Dr. Mallory Thompson, Director) conducted by the composer. Husa states:

I have always been fascinated by colors, not only in music but also in art and nature. The paintings of the impressionists and Fauvists have been particularly attractive to me, and their French origin accounts for the title of my piece. The two movementis (Persisting Bells and Ritual Dance Masks) gave me a chance to experiment with colors...sometimes gentle, sometimes raw...of the wind ensemble, something that John (Paynter) liked to do in his conducting. John has been a wonderful friend since we met for the first time in 1968, when we both taught summer courses at Northwestern University. At that time I had written only one work for band, the Saxophone Concerto. John's devotion to wind ensembles made a great impression on me and certainly influenced me to write more for these instrument combinations. His honesty and dedication to the art of music and to teaching was exemplary. He had first-class baton technique and communicated to the players, as well as to the audience, in a very moving way: powerful, passionate, or delicate and gentle, as the score required. He was reminded of those French painters, whom I admired as a young student in Paris. They called themselves Fauvists (vivid, wild), for they used bold, often powerful strokes of brushes with unmixed colors. Their paintings, though, breathe with sensitivity, serenity, and gentleness. John's transcriptions as well as his conducting had these characteristics and hopefully Les Couleurs Fauves will remind you of them.

Karel Husa is an internationally known composer and conductor. An American citizen since 1959, Husa was born in Prague, Czechoslovakia, in 1921. After studying in Prague and Paris, Husa was appointed to the faculty of Cornell University where he was a Kappa Alpha Professor until his retirement in 1992. Husa's String Quartet No. 3 received the 1969 Pulitzer Prize and his Cello Concerto the 1993 Grawemeyer Award. His Music for Prague 1968 is a standard in the band repertoire with over 10,000 performances worldwide.

Scott G. Higbee is a graduate student at the University of Washington, studying trombone with Stuart Dempster and instrumental conducting with Timothy Salzman and Peter Eros. He is a graduate of Saint Olaf College (Minnesota), where he studied conducting with Miles Johnson and Steven Amundson. Last year he was a graduate assistant for the wind ensemble and undergraduate conducting, and is presently a graduate assistant director of Husky Athletic Bands at the UW.

David C. Fullmer earned his Bachelor of Music and Master of Music degrees from Brigham Young University. He is currently pursuing a Doctor of Musical Arts degree in Instrumental Conducting at the University of Washington where he serves as the teaching assistant for the UW Wind Ensemble, Timothy Salzman, conductor. He is on leave as Director of Bands at Timpview High School in Provo, Utah. The Timpview Band has established a regional and national reputation for excellence in Symphonic Band, Jazz Ensemble, Marching Band and Percussion Ensemble. He has served as the Utah State Chair for the National Band Association and Band Vice President of the Utah Music Educators Association. He has received the UMEA Superior Accomplishment Award, the Mid-West Medal of Honor, Provo Educator of the Year and twice received the National Band Association Citation of Excellence. David and his wife Natalie have two daughters: Hilary 8 and Jasmine 5.

Stephen D. Cleftard is a second-year graduate student at the University of Washington working toward a Doctor of Musical Arts degree in Instrumental Conducting, and serves as Graduate Assistant Director of Athletic Bands. Originally from Monterey, California, where he was Director of Bands at Pacific Grove High School and Director of Jazz Ensembles at Monterey Peninsula College, he received his Bachelors degree in Music Performance from San Jose State University, and his Master of Music in Wind and Orchestral Conducting from the University of Northern Colorado.

Thomas W. Collier, percussionist, appears in the revised edition of "Who's Who in Rock Music," published by Charles Scribner's Sons. He has received over 14 ASCAP cash awards in the popular category of jazz compositions for mallet instruments. As a member of the Collier-Dean Duo, he will be performing 20 concerts in public schools throughout the state under the Washington State Arts Commission's Cultural Enrichment Program. Recordings with Bobby Shew, Barbra Streisand, Mike Vax, Howard Roberts, Ry Cooder and Loretta Almeda, plus LP recordings with his own group, Collier and Dean, as well as his own educational records for the Music Minus One label: An respected artist in Seattle and Los Angeles, where he has spent considerable time in the studio scene, Tom Collier is the Northwest's most "in-demand" vibraphonist, drummer and percussionist. A member of the University faculty since 1980, he is director of the University of Washington Percussion Ensemble.
